Seed Thought

Great Spirit, through the I Ching please give wise counsel to all workers of the Light, in this phase of the journey.

Response

Context: Nurture hidden energy

Summary

Workers of the light, you are collectively like a foetus in a womb, bearing a gift from the spirit. The many obstacles serve as protection whilst you nurture your inner energy. Eliminate outmoded ideas and ways of thinking through mutual effort and support. Prepare yourselves to undertake a great paradigm shift. Overcome fear and denial, liberate your confined energies and connect with what is real. Through this transition you will collectively emerge into the full light of day and be honoured at the centre of power, thus initiating a time of abundant, creative growth. Through self-knowledge and inner awareness establish an enduring connection with reality in your innermost selves. Through this you can participate harmoniously in the unfolding stream of events. Love and Spirit return as an entirely new space of possibility and field of activity opens up and awareness expands into a joyous new state of existence.

Context: Nurture Hidden Energy (4)

All being as it gives birth must be enveloped, like a foetus in the womb. You are carrying a secret gift from the spirit yet you are immature. This is a right of passage into the hidden secrets. Collectively you are nurturing a hidden mandate, a command from the spirit. This is the turning point when the established paradigm begins to wane. This is a secret event of great import requiring hidden process and nurturing through inner awareness.

Your awareness is immature and clouded, accept being hidden in order to nurture growing awareness. There is much concealed from you and much confusion, yet the beginnings are definitely there even if you cannot yet see them. Do not deny that you are immature, accept that your awareness must grow and change. You didn't ask for this situation, the situation asks for you and belongs with you. Keep working on yourself and put your ideas to the test, this will educate you.

There is an outer obstacle protecting an inner source. Energy is returning so turn back to meet it because the answer you seek is already there, but it is immature and has to be protected. Don't pretend you know it already, if you accept being confused and work on things gradually you will bear fruit. Use your confusion to envelop your premature desire to act. When you nourish your awareness and correct your one sided view of things the protective obstacles will dissolve. When you can accept and understand this you will become wise.

A cycle is ending and beginning. The world is about to go into a fluid state of change. An outer limit shields the inner process that will ripen the hidden fruit and actualise the connection with reality. Let go of your attachments and let the difficulties dissolve.

Advice

Nine at Second

Context of Advice: Strip Away Outmoded Ideas (23)

The outmoded and decadent spirit is displaced in preparation for the return of the new, which is not to be confused with driving out a negative influence. Spirit will then return as a guide and a benefactor.

To bring renewal the outmoded habits and ideas must be stripped away. Go deep and eliminate the inessential without thought of immediate gain. If you do that you can participate effectively in times to come.

A cycle is ending so prepare for the new. Be open to new ideas and participate in the stream of events. Re-establish creative balance by stripping away outmoded embellishments. There is something rotten in the situation that forces you to take action. Give generously of your efforts especially to those of lesser awareness.

Those who adapt to the changes that are coming will endure. Stop any past agendas and yield to the flow of events. Look beyond surface appearances and connect with the underlying flow of reality. Old structures are dissolving so new ways of acting can emerge. A space of possibility is opening up, let your awareness expand to fill it.

Specific Advice: The Way is open

Clearly distinguish what changes and what remains. Protect and care for each other. Now is the time to form bonds of kinship and become organised. Establish a framework to shelter the collective, as it strips away outmoded ideas. Be open to the new and share your light.

Six at Fourth

Context of Advice: Prepare for Transition (64)

You are on the edge of a great change, gather your energy, wait for the right moment. This is the prima materia, everything is possible. Each ending is a new beginning, the process of existence is never truly exhausted. Experience the voyage of life and cross the river to the other side, where there awaits a time of abundance and celebration. Return to your ancient abode.

Realise and overcome your persistent illusions. Overcome your limitations in order to aid and rescue each other. Understand what is useful and effective, and provide what is lacking. Remain in a continual creative relation to the process of Change.

Prepare to make a major move or transition. Gather your forces to cross over to the other side. Fulfil your potential and let your fruits ripen. Preparation and commitment are required. Announce that you are poised at the entrance and preparing for transition, readying yourselves to make the journey.

The possibilities are great. The spirits will guide and support you, however it is you who must make the crossing. Be sure that you are prepared and have gathered enough energy to complete it otherwise nothing can save you.

Inherent in life is the potential to overcome disorder. Events are moving towards a phase transition. Do not resort to the use of force, instead understand the nature of those around you. As you gather your energy the spirits will transform this into the capacity to bring the situation to maturity. Be flexible and adaptable so that you do not become unbalanced and do not let go of your centre no matter how things change. Continue with the flow; a strong and unstoppable force is moving you to where you belong.

Specific Advice: Confined and Distressed

Do not succumb to fear or despair and do not retreat into denial. Liberate your youthful spirit from its current limitations. Let your affection and insight flow freely amongst you. Free yourselves from distress and confusion, thereby connecting with what is real. Gather your energy for a decisive new move.

Vision: Flourishing in the Full Light of Day (35)

The dawn of a new day, emerge into the light, recognise each other and share your gifts. The seeds germinate and begin to sprout. A noble force of peace emerges and is honoured at the centre of power. Its flourishing enables a return to peace after the distress of the transition. The people respond with joy and delight.

By giving freely in order to nurture the situation you emerge into the full light of day and no longer remain hidden. You are calm in your strength and poise, taking delight in things, sharing your strength and spirit to enrich each other. Collectively you are recognised and honoured at the centre of power.

Light emerges from within the protective envelope and issues forth throughout the world. Through efforts to nurture hidden growth the time comes to re-imagine the situation, to actively evolve and step into the light. The emerging wisdom brightens your awareness and connects you with reality. This is a time to advance, adapt and commune with others to brighten your own awareness and capacity to share your light. You move forward with flexibility and adaptation. Calm, strong and generous with your spirit. You are no longer hidden and can be seen clearly in the full light of day.

You are no longer bound by past limitations. Through your connection to reality the energy from the Source brightens your power and virtue. Many spirit lessons arise from the fertile ground of being. Brightness, warmth and awareness emerge and are recognised, strengthening your connection to reality.

Opportunity: Return of Love and Spirit (24)

After a difficult time Love and Spirit return. Go back to the beginning, renewal and re-birth. Re-establish the relationship with life. The complicated is stripped away and the underlying essence turns back upon itself and re-emerges.

This is the incessant return of life and spirit. It is the root of power and virtue, the power to become who you are meant to be. It gives birth to self-knowledge. There is joy and community, in an original paradise time as the ongoing process of reality harmoniously unfolds into the stream of events.

To nurture this go back to meet the returning energy in order to begin anew. Return to the Source and re-establish the essential connection to reality. Find the intensity and purity of your unconditioned state of being. By doing this the spirits will guide you in your participation in the stream of events. Let things emerge and return without pressure or upset. Participate in the many mutually profitable projects that will arise. Once the cycle of change is complete the connection to reality will be established deep within.

Inner energy can then flow freely into the field of activity. This connection to reality is the root of your power to participate in reality. Be humble and adaptable but do not conform, rather use your own knowledge of the source of things. To nurture this growing awareness, do not allow the senses and mind to be drawn out and your energy dissipated. Develop your inner focus then the spirits can guide and support you. Through this connection you see the core of the union of the existential process and the world of manifestation.

Rousing energy returns and opens a new field of activity. Nurture the returning spirit and do not dissipate it. Rouse and inspire in preparation for a joyous new beginning.
